

REVIVING THE OLD TIMES

Reunion of Company D of the Light
Infantry Corps.

ITS GALLANT WAR RECORD.

The First Soldiers to be Mustered

Company D of the Washington Light Infantry Corps will hold their annual regulatory reunion to-night at the American House, and there will be a large gathering of the old members of that organization. From 100 to 125 members and ex-members of the company are expected to be present.

The Washington Light Infantry, which passed its jubilee birthday last year, have been organized in 1826, and were the first company to be mustered into the volunteer service in the late war, and Sergeant Coleman was the first man to enlist, which he did early in April, 1861.

The supper to-night is given to the present members of Company D, the colonel and his staff, the commissioned staff, non-commissioned staff and the honorably discharged ex-members of the company.

The prime movers in this enterprise have been the committee composed of Sergeant Wise, Corporal McIntosh, C. M. Merrill, B. K. Lee and High Priest Roginski, and that to-night's supper will be a grand success cannot be doubted.
